Michigan Bar Exam Essay Deconstruction

Synopsis

Often overlooked and under-emphasized in commercial bar review courses, the essay portion of the Michigan Bar can truly save examinees on the Michigan Bar Exam. While the bar examiners claim the essay score is worth the same as your MBE score, after the scaling and conversion of your scores, the essays are actually worth more than your MBE score. This book is indispensable less for any contribution of the author than for (1) actual past bar exam questions beginning in July 2011 and going back about ten years, and (2) the student answers that accompany the questions, along with the score each answer received. The scores will confound you, but they'll make you confident. The answers are so terrible -- often just plain misstating the law (and the author helpfully makes it clear that getting the rule right is not necessary for a good score) -- that you'll be reassured that you'll do well even if you're not at the top of your game during the exam. That being said, don't get prematurely complacent. Buy the book and read all of the answers. By then, you'll have holistically developed a sense of what constitutes fair, good, and great answers, even if you aren't able to put the standard into words. The author's advice is also helpful, and I don't think I'm violating fair use by mentioning that it boils down to the old IRAC method. If you make a decent effort at a standard law school exam IRAC-formatted answer, you'll stumble your way into a passing score, if not a great one. In absolute terms, the book is expensive, but keep in mind that individual exams from the Board of Law Examiners are $10 to $15 each, and this book includes (what I assume are) all of the questions dating back to 2001. So you can justify it that way, if you'd like. And if it's needed, here's something else: spare no reasonable expense when it comes to passing the bar. Appealing is expensive, to say nothing of the eyebrows that will be raised when people are informed that you are the one of five applicants who requires two tries instead of one.
